

Small Section On-boarding

Rohit Goswami · 2020-04-14 · teaching · cs106a

Background

As I mentioned in my last post, I'm leading a section for Stanford CS106A: Code in Place. I did also mention I'd try to keep a set of short notes on the process. So there^[1].

The Training

Given the overwhelming number of students, and section leaders, the small groups are for building a community of teachers.

- ☐ Consider allowing for daisy chaining during introductions
- ☐ Discussions are the primary take-away
- ☐ Only the instructor should be coding during the session

Core components

- Clarity
- Content
- Atmosphere
- Section management
- Correctness

Sectional Details

- Check in at the start
- Notice the space
- Check in regularly
- Avoid negative phrases
- Establish norms and the general culture

Zoom Norms

- Have people introduce themselves
- Mute people when they aren't talking
- Raise hands
- Try to use icebreakers which respect privacy

Materials

Here's some of the stuff which, being as it was open-sourced, I suppose is OK to put here^[2].

- Section Leader Training
- Section Leaders' Guide to Virtual Sections
- Some Zoom Icebreakers

